Analysis Shows How EVs Cut Fuel Costs/Greenhouse Gas Emissions

In April 2012, the Union of Concerned Scientists released a report regarding electric vehicle operating costs and regional power grid emissions. The report is intended to allow consumers to more accurately analyze cost-benefit and pollution when considering the purchase of an electric vehicle. New England is rated as a "Best" region, where the electricity grid emits less polluting emissions. To see how other regions rate and find out more about the report, visit: www.ucsusa.org/clean_vehicles/.
